About the Faxian Series

Fascinating but yet underexplored developments in science and society in China - the XXX paper series presents first observations that warrant a closer look and reports on ongoing studies by scholars of the Lise Meitner Research Group "China in the Global System of Science" and their guests. In an analytical yet jargon-free style, these brief texts introduce selected trends in science policy and politics; the hard and the soft science fields; academic networks, exchange and communities; societal debates about science and technology, ethics and norms; and much more – in China and beyond. XXX analyses encourage to pay attention, they point to gaps in our knowledge, stimulate novel conceptual and theoretical approaches to the developments detected, and ask exciting questions worth pursuing in future research. Including illustrations and links to sources and further reading, they will serve as a first resource for a general audience and as an inspiration for new research endeavors.

We welcome colleagues wishing to add their ideas to our collection to reach out to us.
